The Late Col. McCook.

The funeral of Col. Geo. W. McCook who died at New York on Friday, took place at Steubenville yesterday afternoon. The remains left New York at 6 P. M. Saturday, and reached Setubenville yesterday morning, and were immediately taken to the 2d Presbyterian Church, where they lay in state after the morning service up til 2 P. M., at which hour the funeral took

Here we go! Across the creek into Ohio county. Onward and onward, hills to the left, bottoms to the right, bounded by that became noted during the war as "the fighting. McCooks." He himself was an officer in the Mexican war as far back as 1846, and while he was not in the field during the war he did efficient service in the way of organizing regiments and otherwise aiding the government to put down the rebellion. He had three brothers killed in the war, viz.—Generals Daniel and Robert, and Charles, a pri-Daniel and Robert, and Charles, a private. His father was killed at Buffington Island in the pursuit of Morgan in 1863. His brother Alexander is sentor aid de camp on General Sherman's Staff, and was present at the funeral vesterday His sixth brother la General Ed. McCook, late minister to the Sandwich Islands,

The Colonel was at one time the partper of E. M. Stanton, with whom he studied law. He was a man of considerable talents and fine social qualities. He has been a recognized leader among the Demooracy for many years. He was at one time Attorney General of Ohio, and was the candidate of his party for Governor in 1871, but was defeated by General Noyes. He nominated John C. Breckenridge for Vice President in the Democratic Convention of 1856, and also Horatlo Seymour for President in the Convention of 1868. He was Chairman of the Ohio Democratic delegation at Charleston in 1860, and subsequently at Baltimore in the same year, and was a strong supporter of Douglas. He was not in active practice as a lawyer at the time of his death, and was better known as a railroad man and politician. He was very popular at Steubenville and will be greatly missed there as a public spirited citizen

Col. McCook made his third trip to Europe this last summer, partly for his health and partly to bring home a son and daughter whom he had left in Paris to be educated when abroad from 1871 to 1876. His first trip was made before the war in connection with the bonds of the Steubenville & Indiana (now Pittsburgh, Cincinmati & St. Louis) railroad. He was a man highly cultivated both by reading and travel, and, being possessed of smple means, dispensed an elegant hospitality at his home in Steubenville

THE P. W. & KY.

Excursion of Our Wellsburg Cor-respondent Over the Track— Interesting Observations About the Road and the Country Be-tween Here and Wellsburg. WELLSBURG, December 29.

AN EARLY START.

AN EARLY START.

Having promised to keep you posted as to the progress of the Pittsburgh, Wheeling & Kentucky Railroad towards your city, and learning that the citiens of Wheeling, although favored with two railroads terminating there, are very much interested in the new road, we, on yesterday morning, started out to traverse the route from Wellsburg to Wheeling. Boarding engine No. 49 at about hair past six o'clock, we were in a tew minutes on our way. As the day began to dawn we had an opportunity to notice things along the road. Contractor Jones, Director Lazear and Pat. Maloney, ot Columbus, Ohio, chief of the track layers, were aboard busily engaged in conversation in relation to the work before them for the day.

CROSSING BUFFALO GREEK,

We notice the appearance of the lots that were not long since laid out, and are now neatly fenced and under a state of some and see us. Remaining at Genn's Run until dark we boarded the had were not long since laid out, and are now neatly fenced and under a state of conseasily improvement. The coal timels the city of favors shown. May they it train for favors shown. May they it to the train for favors shown. May they it to the train for favors shown. May they it to the train for favors shown. May they it to the train for favors shown. May they it to the train for favors shown. May they it to the favors shown. May they it to the favors that daily occur, against which no human skill can provide, and the very many delaying to crumantal that in balance shat daily occur, against which no human skill can provide, and the very many distriction along which he balance along which in bundant is the balance along which it is along the train to the balance along which it is along that it is along that the city of the train for the day.

general improvement. The coal tipple of Forbes, Carmichael & Co., which has lately been aubstantially modernized, eaxt attracts our attention. This firm does a very axisfactory business. That does a very satisfactory business. They find a ready market for their coal here and at Parkersburg. They are working men and are deservedly successful. Down a little further is the site of the old sati works, long since abandoned as a non-paying enterprise. Near by, an excavation in the earth, now covered with sod, the realism.

IN THIS VICINITY We observe the black looking frame house where John Brown (not him whose "soul is marching on") in the early days of the late rebellion, killed Frank Kirk-wood in a meles. The place is of no awaying mass, when, on coming to the praywood in a melee. The place is of no particular interest save that of being the only place within the neighborhood where a murder has been committed within the memory of "ye oldest inhabitant." In this locality there is a deep ravine known as "Ghost Hollow." How it came to have such an interesting title deponent saith not. There may be a story connected with it; if so we will probably hear of it.

GLIDING ALONG.

there for freight and passengers, as considerable business is transacted at this point.

We notice that the "Short Creek House" kept by Mr. Wilson has been greatly improved and enjoys the reputation of a first class stopping place. Our friend Luke Conant, has charge of the Store at Short Creek. He enjoys the comforts of a new store room got up on the modern plan, keeps a little of every thing, and does a general, produce business.

TARING ON RAILS.

PRIDAY EVENING.

Editors Intelligencer.

The exercises were opened with sing-ing by a number of ladies and gentlemen.

T. S. Riley was introduced and spoke at some length on the subject of education. He noticed the fact that upon the teacher depends whether scholars perform their duty or not. Teachers should teach much outside of the text book. They should give pupils much general knowl-

The end of the track is reached opposite the lower island. "Pile out" is the order, and the faithful fellows are soon engaged in laying track.

looking around your city awhile and admiring its go ahead, business like appearance, we turned "about face"—"forward"—and were soon tramping over the Pittsburgh, Wheeling & Kentucky Railrond.

AGAIN REACHING GLENN'S RUN across that stream. Anxious to know how far it was from there to Wheeling we enquired of Mr. Reilly, who lives near by, and was told "four miles to the sus-pension bridge by actual measurement." pension bridge by actual measurement."
To some it seems as if slow progress was being made on the road, but if the trouble will be taken to go along the line and witness the amount of work to be performed, take into account the shortness of the days, take this little drawback and that large one, and the very many delaying circumstances that daily occur, against which no human skill can provide, and put all in the balance along with what is done, and it will be found that the very best that can be done is being done.

PROSPECTS FOR REACHING WHEELING.

Mr. Maloney feels confident that the weather permitting—and he complains, not of the past—and all else being equal that in a few days more he will connect the city of Wheeling by an iron band with that partians of mankind who dwell at the city of the city of

GLIDING ALONG.

Our faithful engine glides along at a very fair rate of speed, the track being in good order, having undergone a leveling and straightening process under the supervision of Mr. Connors, an excellent workman and a clever gentleman. Bowman's is reached. Here some of the workman step down and out, ready for their day's work. This is where Uncle John Bowman, the veteran coal micr and dealer, holds forth in the same old trade, supplying black diamonds to the river craft. Uncle John is well known along the river, having been engaged in the coal and other river interests for a number of years. He does a good business and is worthy of patronage.

After a while the "Beech Bottoms" are reached. Down through the middle we pass beautiful fields to the right and left, some covered with a coat of green and others with shocks of corn that give the fields the appearance of an Indian encampment. Neat and comfortable farmhouses with all the modern improvements present a scene worthy the brush of the artist, and give evidence of a rich, prosperous and peaceable country. The track through the Bottoms has not yet been fully ballasted, but is an average track through the Bottoms has not yet been fully ballasted, but is an average track through the Bottoms has not yet been fully ballasted, but is an average track through the Bottoms has not yet been fully ballasted, but is an average track through the Bottoms has not yet been fully ballasted, but is an average track through the Bottoms has not yet been fully ballasted, but is an average track through the secone of that frame building on the bank of the river near the mouth of the care was the "Still House" of the omnipotent bishop. TARING ON BAILS.

At Short Creek three or four barges laddened with cross-ties are moored at the river landing. They were being hauled on pand put on gondols cars to be carried down the road. H. G. Lazear has charge of this department. After this ties will be landed rear the Top Mill and distributed along the road bed from that point. This will be a great help towards an early completion of tracklaying.

"KINE MILES TO WHEELING."
Here we go! Across the creek into Ohio county. Onward and onward, hills to the lelt, bottoms to the right, bounded by the waters of the beautiful Ohio. There is Pike Island. Not long since we were in this locality and crossing a run which passes under the railroad, and empities into the Ohio about opposite the foot of Pike Irland, we noticed engraved on the stones which form the arch over the run the following:

"P. W. & Ky. K. R. April 1st. 1873.

REACHED THE CITY WHARF.

The road is ready for the rails with the exception of a few ugly places in the neighborhood of "Slab Town" where "dogs delight to bark," and probably bite, as those that confronted us looked mean enough to be guilty of anything dogish. We hope that their fate may be like some of their kindred that formerly dwelt along the road in these parts which were severed in twain by the wheels of the cars. Large gangs of men were at work at different places along the line from "Slab Town" to the city preparing the road for the track. Of course our curiosity led us to see
